Letter from the Board

Welcome New Board Members

We are very excited to announce that the community has elected two new board members to join the Willow Creek III HOA Board of Directors. Please help us welcome Jerry Grant and Laura Ream. Both Jerry and Laura are active Willow Creek III residents with a passion for serving the community. Many thanks to our "retiring" board members Bob West and Chris Mumfrey for their multiple terms on the HOA board. We are forever grateful.

Community Survey

The new board of directors will be sending out a survey in the coming months. The purpose of the survey is to make sure the board is representing the community effectively and spending our dollars on things that are important to all homeowners. Watch for the upcoming survey. And please send in your responses.

Reserve Study

The new board of directors will be updating our community reserve study. The reserve study ensures the board budgets the appropriate funds to replace aging community amenities. This is critical to make sure Willow Creek III is in a solid financial condition and that we are able to maintain the community we all love.

Fall Clean-Up

The early October snowstorm caused significant damage to many trees and bushes in our neighborhood. Contractors have been working to clean those up over the past weeks. JBK Landscape will continue their fall clean-up efforts as long as weather allows, in order to keep our neighborhood looking good through the winter.

Putting Together the Perfect Holiday Table:

Happy Thanksgiving!

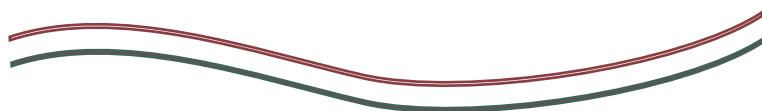

November 2017 ACC Corner

Submitted by Jeffrey Stevens

Some time ago Sherwin Williams changed the formula for their base white. This is the base that is used when tinting a color. And this change has affected the town homes greatly. If a town home uses the correct color as dictated by the covenants it may look significantly different than their neighbor due to the new base formulation. Also, if one neighbor uses the top-of-the-line base verses the middle grade, there are differences. And while all the townhomes in a row will eventually be similar, until they have all been repainted there will be some significant differences. And even after repainting, due to the formulaic discrepancies between the top and lower grades of bases, some discrepancies will be apparent.

The City of Centennial is pleased to offer high quality trees to Centennial residents at a discounted price through the launch of its first pilot tree program! The Centennial Tree Program encourages tree planting, helps ensure tree diversity, beautifies our neighborhoods, shades homes to help conserve energy and promotes water conservation through the selection of specific tree species. Five types of trees will be available to purchase through this program for only $60 (plus tax), while supplies last. Please keep in mind the trees offered through this program:

- Will have a trunk diameter of 1"-1.5" and range in height from 5-12 feet, with none weighing more than 70 lbs.
- Must be planted on residential private property within the City of Centennial, with a limit of one tree per household.
- Are not warranted, though they are grown specifically for the climate and soil conditions found in most parts of Colorado and generally have a high survival rate.

Tree species include the Kentucky Coffeetree, Autumn Brilliance Serviceberry, Summer Charm Lilac Tree, Swamp White Oak and Turkish Filbert/Hazelnut. Availability is limited, so apply now! Trees will be available on a first-come, first-serve basis. Learn more about this pilot program and complete the tree order form at www.centennialco.gov/Resident-Services/tree-program.aspx.

Willow Creek's #1 Real Estate Team

Don't Take Our Word for it... Hear what our clients have to say!

"This is the 8th home we have sold; the entire process was the easiest one by far. Derek and his team proved to be knowledgeable, appropriately aggressive, and kept us informed through each step of the sales and negotiation process. His computer/sales skills were outstanding."

~ Willow Creek Home Seller

"Derek and his Gilbert Group team are the BEST!!! He sold my house in 4 days for a price higher than the listed price. I was so happy! His team make all the work a breeze during the process. There were no surprises at all. I highly recommend Derek Gilbert and The Gilbert Group for your real estate transactions. I am glad I called on Derek. It was the smoothest real estate transaction that I have ever experienced."

~ Willow Creek Home Seller

"The Gilbert Group was amazing! My wife and I were looking to purchase a home in the very competitive market. When the right home came up, they put together an offer that was accepted even though, I was told by the seller's agent after close, it wasn't the highest offer by far but just a very strong offer. Since they work both sides of the market, they know what sellers are looking for. We had doubts at the beginning with working with a group but they made the process seamless and very easy. Thank you Derek, Lee, Maria, and the rest of the group for all you did for our family and helping us find our home. You are appreciated."

Bullying

While not all kids bully, nor are bullied, they may witness it. Teaching your child to recognize bullying and how to stand up to it can benefit them and their peers. Parents and teachers can teach their kids these four easy-to-remember, simply-to-apply rules for using assertive communication to STAND up to bullying behavior.

Show Strength

Showing strength does not mean flexing muscles or challenging a bully to arm wrestle. Rather, teach kids to show their inner strength by speaking with a confident, even voice and standing an appropriate distance from the bully (not in their face, not shrinking back). Also, encourage your child to look a bully directly in the eye. Making eye contact is one of the best ways that young people can demonstrate strength to a bully.

Tell a Trustworthy Adult

The main strategy of a child who bullies is to make his victim feel alone and powerless. The best way for a child to counter that strategy is to tell a helpful adult about what is going on and ask for that adult's support. When the aggressive young person realizes that he will not be able to keep a victim isolated — that the victim is strong enough to reach out and connect with others — he begins to lose power. Sometimes adults fail to acknowledge the seriousness of bullying, but more often, grown-ups are not aware of what is going on. These days, intimidators use non-classroom time, including the internet, to bully their peers. It is a kid's job to bring these behind-the-scenes methods to light and to create awareness in adults about bullying.

Assert Yourself

In the heat of an encounter with a physically, verbally or emotionally aggressive peer, it can be very challenging for a child to respond effectively. When kids learn and practice assertive phrases for standing up to bullies, they become well-equipped to handle incidents of conflict and bullying with their peers. Parents and educators can teach, rehearse and role model short, to-the-point, assertive phrases that let others know that they will not participate in their bullying, nor will they be bullied, such as:

- "Knock it off."
- "I like the way I look."
- "That was not funny."
- "Friends don't do that to friends."

The important thing to remember about assertive phrases is that they do not put down or attack the bully, which is never a good idea. Likewise, these phrases are not effective when said through tears or a whining voice. They are simply brief, assertive statements used to stand up to bullies and stop bullying behavior.

Now!

One of the biggest mistakes people make when they are up against a bully is to ignore repeated bullying and hope that the problem will go away. While bullying usually begins in a relatively mild form — name calling, teasing or minor physical aggression — it often becomes more serious when the bully realizes that his victim is not going to STAND up for himself. The longer a bully has power over a victim, the stronger the hold becomes. STANDING up to the bully — and doing it sooner rather than later — is the best way to gain and retain power.
